Findings:

General: Based on observation and interview, a two-year-old child played on a large piece of climbing equipment on 11/1/19 when she slid down the swirl pole. The two-year-old child lost her grip, fell and landed on a toy truck left directly under the swirl pole. The two year-old child received a cut on the back right side of her head, which required two (2) staples to close. Interview determined a staff member was present and did not foresee the hazard of the toys being under the climbing equipment. As a result, the child received an injury to her head, which required medical treatment.
